Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses by Hackney Council

Issue 260 18 July 2011

What a result

Hackney's netball squad celebrate their improved performance in this year's London Youth Games

HUNDREDS of young athletes took centre stage at this year's London Youth Games with Hackney putting in its best performance ever.

The borough was represented by more than 400 eager competitors and came in the top 20 for the first time, against 32 other London boroughs.

Hackney jumped seven places to 16th overall, after finishing 23rd last year, with 18 teams from the borough finishing in the top 10 for their individual events. Hackney landed team medals in the weightlifting, girls' basketball, and adapted rowing team events. Individual medals were also won by 34 young athletes in disciplines including disability athletics and kayaking.

ONE YEAR TO GO

HACKNEY'S parks are the place to be this summer if you want to mark the final countdown to the London 2012 Games in style.

On 27 July there will be exactly one year to go until the Olympic opening ceremony. To mark the milestone there will be a Parks for Life event in Haggerston Park on 24 July, featuring a traditional sports day with egg and spoon races, long jump and time trials. Other highlights include live music, healthy eating stalls, face-painting and a play zone for young children.

Then Hackney One Carnival returns on 7 August, along with a Parks for Life festival in Clissold Park. The carnival brings together performers from across the borough as part of the Cultural Olympiad to celebrate arts and culture alongside sports in the run up to the Games. Now in its fourth year, the carnival parade kicks off at 12noon in Ridley Road and works its way north up the A10 to Stoke Newington Church Street, before arriving in Clissold Park at 2pm. There will be live music, dancing and fun activities until 6pm.

Last year more than 8,000 people enjoyed the event, which is organised by the Council's 2012

Unit alongside local carnival groups. Mayor of Hackney, Jules Pipe, said: "With just one year to go until the 2012 Games, Hackney One Carnival is a great way for residents to come out and celebrate our role as a host borough and to get involved in a community event."

Parks for Life activities run until September and are aimed at helping people get fit and healthy outdoors. Cllr Jonathan

McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care, and Culture, said: "We want to encourage as many people as possible to stay active and make the most of Hackney's award winning green spaces."

Highly prized day

HUNDREDS of residents from the Homerton area let their hair down at a recent fun day on Frampton Park estate.

Organised by the Management Executive South Hackney (MESH) who are the umbrella organisation for all the resident groups in Homerton, the event, held on 25 June, was filled with lots of fun activities for the family.

Children played on large bouncy castles, and were treated to sausage rolls and refreshments, and everyone had the chance to enter prize draws on the day.

The winner of a coveted Nintendo Wii star prize was John Williams from Gascoyne 2 estate who correctly guessed the number of sweets in a jar.

Residents from the Homerton area enjoy themselves, and scoop some prizes in the process at the fun day organised by MESH

Terry Edwards, Chair of MESH, said: "What a great day for Homerton residents. People really enjoyed themselves – a big thank you to everyone who supported us to organise this."

Hackney Today is printed on 100 per cent recycled paper.

Please make sure you recycle it after reading, so the paper can be used again

Best get out of the rain

Clockwise from above: Running from the rain; waiting inside Hackney Marshes Centre; chatting to the Mayor; warming up before the rain

AROUND 500 excited primary school children gathered at the Hackney Marshes Centre ready to compete against their own personal bests in a range of sports – but were thwarted by heavy rain.

They were taking part in the Council-run Hackney Personal Bests programme. It harnesses the borough's status as a host for the 2012 Games to inspire children to become more active, try new sports, and learn about how the activities they do and what they eat, can contribute to a healthy lifestyle.

Children, aged nine to 11, from 40 of the borough's primary schools have been trying their hand at a range of Olympic and Paralympic sports and recording their progress. The six most improved pupils from each school make it through to the finals, and the team with the most new personal best scores in long jump, triple jump, javelin, shot put, discus and running are crowned champions.

But after several hours of torrential rain during this year's final day on 7 July, it was decided the event could not go ahead.

The final will be rescheduled so that none of the pupils miss out on their chance to take part. Because of the school summer holidays however, it is now likely to go ahead in September.

KEY FACT

Personal Bests is currently running in more than 40 primary schools across the borough, and involves around 2,000 children

A previous Cycle Pit Stop event

On your bike

CYCLISTS are invited to bring their bikes to two free events where they can get an on-the-spot check-up. The Council's Streetscene team, in partnership with the police and London Cycling Campaign, will be holding Cycle Pit Stop events on:

- 28 July, 4-7pm, at junction of Wordsworth Rd and Palatine Rd (Butterfield Green), N16
- 4 August, 12-3pm, at St John at Hackney Churchyard, Lower Clapton Road, E5

As well as free checks to ensure cycles are in good working order, there will be practical support and information available on getting safely and quickly around Hackney.

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Events like these demonstrate how simple and necessary it is to make sure that bikes are in a roadworthy condition."

The finished International Broadcast Centre

Bring on the broadcasters

THE International Broadcast Centre (IBC) is now the fifth London 2012 venue to be completed.

The IBC, along with the Main Press Centre, is in the Hackney section of the Olympic Park, and will provide 24-hour support for journalists during the Games. The 275m-long building will cater for over 20,000 broadcasters, photographers and print journalists – bringing sporting action to an estimated four billion people worldwide.

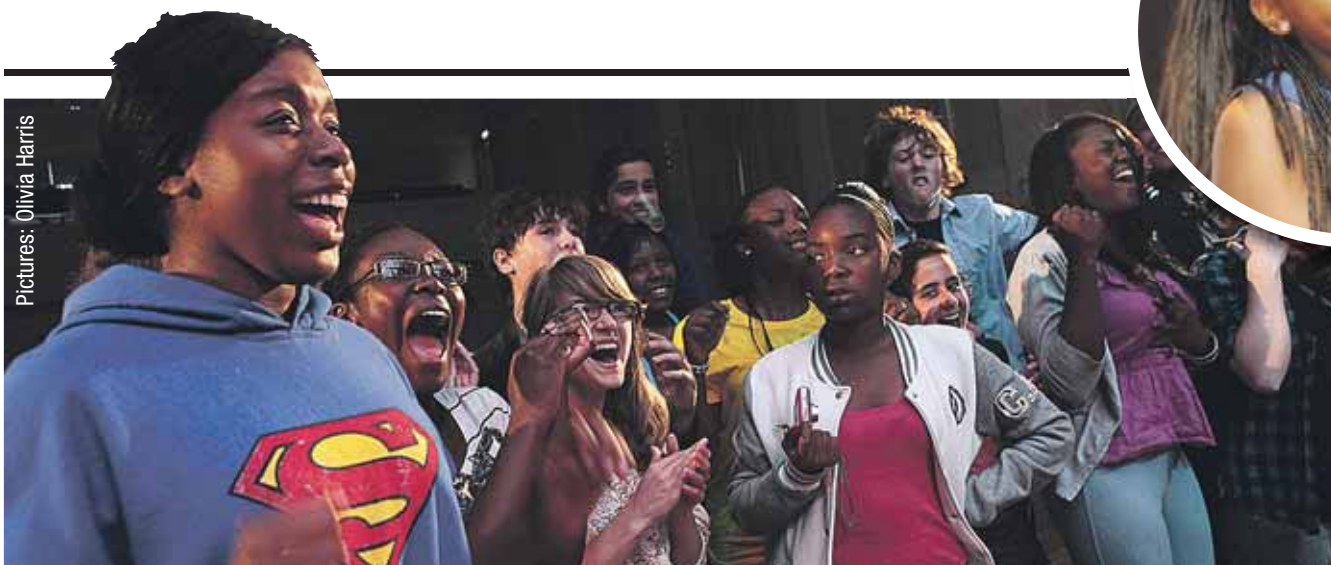

It has been designed to be as flexible as possible to accommodate a range of potential tenants and uses after the Games. It has been designated as employment space with the potential to create thousands of new jobs locally.

YOUNG bands from across the borough showcased their musical talents at the 'Hackney Jam'.

Friends and family turned out in force to support the young people who took part in a free, live jam session at Stoke Newington Town Hall on 6 July.

The 12 bands from schools, colleges, and youth centres entertained a 250-strong audience, which included BBC talent scouts. They performed an eclectic mix of music ranging from classical, calypso and jazz, to soul, indie, rock and hip-hop.

The event was organised by Stoke Newington Youth

Forum (SNYF). Rachel Piper, a 17-year-old member and one of the organisers, said: "We wanted to get away from the usual stereotyping around the music young people play and enjoy."

Zoe, 13, the bass player from Mossbourne Academy's 'Sherlock's Dead', said: "I was nervous to start with but really loved the response we received from the crowd."

SNYF member and stage manager, Jermain Jackman, 16, who also performed, was delighted with the turnout and positive feedback. He added: "The energy from the audience, the brilliant performances and the support staff brought it all together."

Hackney Jam was organised in partnership with youth charity Rising Tide and event managers New Variety Lives. It was funded by the Council's Youth Opportunity Fund.

Jenny Sealey and Bradley Hemmings, Joint Artistic Directors of the London 2012 Paralympic opening ceremony, with The Iron Man

2012 story-tellers

A HACKNEY resident will be the driving force behind the colour and excitement of the 2012 Paralympic Games opening ceremony.

Jenny Sealey, Artistic Director of ground-breaking, disabled-led theatre company Graeae, has been appointed Joint Artistic Director of the ceremony, along with Bradley Hemmings, Artistic Director of Greenwich+Docklands Festivals (GDiF).

The pair have a history of staging shows together, including work by deaf and disabled artists.

Jenny has lived in Hackney for 25 years and worked at Graeae since 1998. She oversaw the company's move into a state-of-the-art venue next to the Geffrye Museum in Kingsland Road in 2009 – the same year that she received an MBE for services to disability arts.

Jenny said: "Bradley and I both love a good story and create work with a strong narrative. We aim to bring together the greatest deaf, disabled and non-disabled performers to create an aural and visual feast that will never be forgotten. I can't wait to get to work to make 2012 the greatest show ever."

The appointment was announced on 24 June before a performance at the GDiF of a Graeae touring production, an adaptation of Ted Hughes' 'The Iron Man', directed by Jenny.

She is passionate about finding new theatrical voices, and Graeae shows always fuse British Sign Language and audio description as an integral part of the action.

Admitting that she can't imagine living anywhere other than Hackney, she added of the ceremony: "The sheer diversity of this wonderful borough means diversity will be core to our ethos as will equality, quality and inclusion."

The Paralympic opening ceremony – set to take place on 29 August 2012 – traditionally starts with the raising of the Paralympic and host nation's flags, and includes an athletes' parade and speeches. The Games are then declared open and oaths are taken by representatives of the athletes and judges. Finally, the Paralympic flame is used by the last torchbearer to light the cauldron.

Paralympic ticket applications are open from 9 to 30 September 2011.

News in brief

PE teacher and 2012 hopeful Daniel Davies is interviewed by a Cardinal Pole pupil for the BBC

Report to the pupils

TEACHERS from Hackney schools were invited to BBC Television Centre for a preview of the 2012 edition of the BBC's annual School Report.

The scheme has run for six years, encouraging young people to file reports via their school websites to the BBC. More than 800 schools contributed reports last year. Several Hackney schools are already signed up for next year, and Hackney Free pupils have produced a report on their PE Teacher, Daniel Davies, who hopes to be selected for the 2012 hurdling team.

Helen Shreeve, BBC School Report editor, said: "Hackney young people are experts on what is happening during 2012. For example, one of the big events is the BBC Radio 1 concert on Hackney Marshes; we want young people to report on that."

News day 2012 takes place on 15 March, but the BBC wants students to report throughout the year. Participating schools get access to regular School Report e-mails, invitations to briefing events, access to learning resources, and the chance to take part in regular training days with BBC staff. For more information, e-mail: schoolreport@bbc.co.uk; or visit: www.bbc.co.uk/schoolreport

Cafe contract

A FIVE-YEAR contract to run the Clissold House cafe and Pump House kiosk in Clissold Park has been awarded. The Council announced on 8 July that the contract would go to Company of Cooks, which already manages cafes at Kenwood House, Hyde and Greenwich parks, and the Imperial War Museum among others.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Clissold Park and House are nearing the end of a £8.9 million transformation and the catering is an integral part of this."

It is hoped the kiosk will be open by mid-September and the restored house and cafe later in the autumn. For info call: 020 8356 8428/9; e-mail: info@hackney.gov.uk; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/cp-community-park

MAGIC, music, food and fine weather helped draw over 500 people to this year's Woodberry Down estate regeneration fun day.

Residents turned out in force on 2 July to find out more about how the Council and its partners, Berkeley Homes and Genesis Housing Association, are regenerating the area over the next 20 years.

The project will create a mix of over 4,600 social rented, private and shared ownership homes, plus a range of new facilities including a community centre, health centre, new Academy, and extended primary school, as well as retail and commercial opportunities.

Information was also on offer from a host of organisations including Hackney Homes and its repairs contractor Mulalley, Manor House Development Trust and Hackney police.

Kirkney Lee-Martin, seven, won a bicycle, donated by Mulalley. Kirkney – aka Mr Cool – has never had a bike before and was delighted that his efforts in a dancing competition did not go unnoticed.

The fun day coincided with former Council tenants moving in to the first new homes for social renting to be built at Woodberry Down, which are managed by Genesis Housing Association.

Cllr Philip Glanville, Cabinet Member for Housing; Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods; and Cllr Michael Jones, elected member for New River ward, also attended the fun day.

Cllr Glanville said: “It was good to see so many residents finding out more about the regeneration of Woodberry Down, which is set to provide hundreds of new homes, including much-needed family-sized ones, over the coming years.”

Ruche Peng, Genesis Regeneration Manager for Woodberry Down, added: “It was good to be able to chat to residents about the progress we’ve made to regenerate the area and to explain what we’ve got coming up next.”

A lift for young athletes

Hackney's London Youth Games team achieved its highest overall position ever – with some fantastic individual performances

YOUNG athletes stormed the London Youth Games to achieve Hackney's highest ever position in the competition – and its first time in the top 20.

Over 400 young people competed for Hackney against the capital's other 32 boroughs. Hackney was represented by 40 teams, across 27 sports, in events that began last November and culminated in a finals weekend at Crystal Palace National Sports Centre on 2 and 3 July.

The borough jumped seven places from last year to 16th out of 33, which smashed its previous highest ever position of 23rd. Across a wide range of events, 18 Hackney teams finished in the top 10, with 36 in the top 20.

There were team medals for weightlifting, girls' basketball and adapted rowing teams, with 34 individual medals across disability athletics, kayak sprint, kayak slalom, sailing, rowing, judo, trampoline, indoor rowing, disability swimming and weightlifting. There were many outstanding team and individual performances, but the standout achievement came from the weightlifting team finishing first for the second year running and securing the title with a personal best performance from Omarie Mears in the boys event.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “A huge well done to all of those that participated and helped Hackney achieve its highest finish ever – it really is a great achievement.”

The Council is already on the look out for young people to take part in the 2011/12 Hackney London Youth Games teams – get in touch to find out more.

Sorry no dogs, no bikes and no alcohol

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

Not upsetting the apple cart

FOR Tom Baker, founder of the Field Day and Underage festivals, it's almost impossible to pick his ideal headliners.

"Radiohead would be the obvious one, Kraftwerk, Burial, and a Bob Dylan acoustic set," says the Stoke Newington resident after a long, deliberating pause.

Adding: "If I can have dead people too, then it'll be Jimi Hendrix, Miles Davis and Ali Farka Touré. That would make a fantastically eclectic set."

Tom has been putting on music events around the borough and beyond for over a decade – with the first festival being at Hackney City Farm in 2001. He says: "It has all been very organic, there was no real game plan to make money. We started out as very hand to mouth, then gradually built into something."

His firm Eat Your Own Ears, based in Shacklewell Studios, E8, showcases musicians from independent record labels like Domino and Rough Trade, and cherry picks some of the best new acts to perform locally and around the country.

His club and gig nights are solely devoted to cutting edge music, while successful festivals like Field Day add countryside charm – influenced by his Somerset background. Think electric guitars and dub-step alongside hay bales and country dancing.

Tom says: "I wouldn't put on bands just to sell tickets, they are always bands I really like. I'd put on The Temper Trap or Florence and the Machine with some quirky folk act from Fife and a weird art project to embrace everything. Some events make money, some lose money, some break even, it's just about getting the balance right."

Which might go some way towards explaining Field Day's development. Now a treasure trove for discovering some of the best bands across the musical spectrum, the festival's early years were dogged by teething problems, bad luck and worse weather.

Tom explains: "Field Day has been a steep learning curve, but the more events you put on, the more you improve. Last year was amazing weather, but we can't control that. Everything went really smoothly. It's exciting to build an event and make it better."

This year a new down-tempo Sunday festival, The Apple Cart, has been added to the roster focusing more on comedy, magic and art (with some music) and featuring Tim Minchin and Mark Steel among the stars. While the Underage festival, which this year boasts Janelle Monae and CocknBullKid, continues to be a big hit with young people.

Tom says: "It's difficult to pick what I'm looking forward to the most because each day is different. Underage always has an amazing atmosphere, Field Day has an incredible line-up, and I'm interested to see how comedy and magic works at The Apple Cart."

Tom has lived in the borough with his partner for the past 10 years. And being a local promoter, gig venue Café Oto, as well as new music venues like Shacklewell Arms and Vortex Jazz Bar, are always on his radar, if not working directly with owners.

He says: "I love it here, and I don't know where else I'd live. There's just a really great sense of community around Hackney that's quite special; great restaurants, new cafes, pop-up events and exciting things happening everywhere."

“I love it here, I don't know where else I'd live. There's a real sense of community around Hackney”

All your recycling questions answered

Q: Can I use supermarket carrier bags marked 'biodegradable' to line my blue food recycling bin?

A: Plastic carrier bags cannot be used in your Blue Bin; even the ones that say 'biodegradable'. This is because they cause problems in the recycling process.

If you would like to line your blue bin, you can use special compostable liners, available from local stockists.

The Blue Bin scheme is a weekly collection of kitchen scraps, which are then composted.

The service is available to street level properties across Hackney. To find out more about recycling food waste, or where you can buy the bin liners, call: 020 8356 6688; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling

Eileen Bellot was one of the volunteers with her hands full clearing floating pennywort down on the River Lee with Thames21

Weed it and reap

VOLUNTEERS removed nine cubic metres of floating pennywort from the River Lee near Springfield Marina on 3 July.

It was the first in a series of events, run by charity Thames21, to improve the ecology of the River Lee, with support from the Environment Agency. Floating pennywort is a non-native, invasive species, which is choking the river. The weed is spreading and taking over by feeding on nutrients in polluted water.

The events are part of Thames21's 'Love the Lee' campaign to encourage people to help reduce pollution. Top tips include switching to phosphate-free detergents and checking to see if their home has misconnected pipes that flow directly into the river.

Thames21 coordinator, Vicky D'souza, said: "Individuals can make a real difference. I would encourage everyone that wants to be able to enjoy the on the day. All equipment is provided, under-16s should be accompanied by an adult.

Research by University College London has shown high levels of pollution in the Lee. It is believed to be caused by overflow from a sewage treatment plant during heavy rains.

The next events are on 6 August and 3 September. Volunteers can just turn up

Local park wins £45k funds

A SMALL park in Stoke Newington has received over £45,000 in development funding to plan restoration work.

The two-and-a-half acre West Hackney Recreation Ground on Manse Road, N16, incorporates St Paul's Churchyard and Old Burial Ground. It is hoped that, when work is complete, community groups and schools studying local history and the environment will use the site, alongside passers-by and commuters seeking a tranquil spot.

The Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) and Big Lottery Fund awarded the money so that a partnership of West

Hackney Parochial Charity, Groundwork, London, the Council and residents could develop a second stage application for £639,200 to carry out the renovation works.

The plans also include a new children's play area, which the London Marathon Trust has already pledged to fund.

Graves will also be repaired and the park's original planting designs recreated.

Reverend Niall Weir, Rector of St Paul's Church, said: "For four years now we've been dreaming of how, one day, this site might once again be an open green space, here in the heart

West Hackney Recreation Ground is set for renovation of West Hackney, that will provide a historical and recreational focus right in the heart of our community."

A whole lot of transforming

RESIDENTS on two Hackney estates have been putting their green fingers to work transforming derelict sites into bountiful gardens.

An empty site at Amhurst Park estate, N16, was transformed last year and another garden at Samuel Lewis Trust, on Amhurst Road, E8, was officially launched in June.

Vacant Lot is a three-year Lottery funded project, run in conjunction with London housing associations, and aimed at converting unused areas into communal food growing plots for residents.

Over the past two years Southern Housing Group has worked in partnership

Resident Gabriel Hayward stands among gardens at the Vacant Lot project in Amhurst Road, Hackney with Groundwork London and What if: projects Ltd on 20 sites across Hackney, Islington and Camden. Residents and volunteers helped clear the sites before large, compost-filled, bulk bags or wooden planters were installed. Gardening workshops were held, showing residents how to maintain the plots including the watering and weeding of plants.

Cutting bills

RESIDENTS can get free advice on how to save energy and reduce fuel bills by simply making a quick phone call. Climate Energy is a specialist organisation that runs a helpline, manned by trained advisers who can discuss energy saving ideas with callers.

They can also give advice on the energy-saving grants currently available to leaseholders and freeholders, as well as how to prevent costly fuel bills.

Advisers are available Mon to Fri, from 9am to 7pm, and on Sat, from 9am to 12pm. They can offer advice in a number of languages and communicate with people who are hard of hearing using a text-to-voice and voice-to-text relay service.

Climate Energy staff will also be on hand to offer face-to-face advice at Hackney Homes' community events this summer, as well as supporting Hackney Homes' staff to give energy advice to their residents and tenants, and offer home visits for specialist advice on how to reduce energy bills.

Hackney WickED

29-31 Jul, Hackney Wick, E9

The engine room of the East End art scene is opening its gates for three days of local and international talent showcases at the upcoming Hackney WickED festival.

Among the art-based crannies, nooks and cubbyholes in E9, Warehouse space Oslo House will host 'A Tea Room with a View', a mix of architectural drawings, prints, photography, vintage and contemporary fashion; new local theatre The Yard launches; Forman's Smokehouse Gallery will explore the Brazilian roots of more than 30 artists; Panta Rei parks up its exhibiting van; and 'We are artists, how can we help?' reflects on the resident artist community's life next to the Olympic site. There will also be a locally shot film by St Etienne and the obligatory selection of music and street parties.

And expect a lot more activities besides with the area being the largest cultural quarter in the world: there are more than 600 studios in Hackney Wick, making one in seven people either an artist or an arts centre worker.

Win a pair of tickets to see FELA!

Following a sell-out season at the National Theatre and a Tony Award-winning Broadway run, FELA! heads to Sadler's Wells for the summer.

Co-produced by Jay-Z, Will Smith & Jada Pinkett Smith, FELA! tells the life story of legendary afrobeat pioneer Fela Kuti through dance and music.

Fela found his authentic musical voice adding elements of traditional Yoruba, highlife, and jazz, giving rise to afrobeat. Through his music he condemned military regimes in Nigeria for their mismanagement, and the marginalisation of the underprivileged.

Fela died in August 1997 at the age of 58 – in Nigeria

one million people attended his funeral. FELA! runs at Sadler's Wells Theatre, Rosebery Avenue, EC1R 4TN from 20 July to 28 August. For more info, call: 0844 412 4300, or visit: www.sadlerswells.com

For a chance to win a pair of tickets, send a postcard to FELA! competition, Hackney Today, Room 82, Hackney Town Hall, Mare St, E8 1EA; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 6 August. Submissions must include a contact telephone number and address, winners will be pulled out of a hat.

PREVIEW

A Night in Tahrir Square

Until 22 July, Barbican, Silk St, EC2Y 8DS

The London summer will get a taste of the Arab Spring in a musical event featuring some of the leading icons of the recent Egyptian revolution. Hosted by Barbican, 'A Night in Tahrir Square' will showcase the rhythms, poetry and prose of the country's long tradition of political dissent. "The protest movement in Egypt goes back for more than a century," says event organiser Chris Sharp. "Folk music has been one of the main channels of dissent and helped to sustain the networks of activism since well before the Mubarak era," he added. From the renowned composer Mustafa Said, to the viral internet hit and 'Billy Bragg' of the Egyptian revolution, Rammy Essam, the featured artists were all key in sustaining the spirit of the uprising on the frontlines in Tahrir Square. By bringing the live sounds of the movement to a UK audience, alongside performers' first-hand accounts of imprisonment and torture, Sharp hopes to sustain the world's attention on a struggle that is still far from finished.

"This is the first time almost any of the artists have played in the UK, so it is a great opportunity to open people's eyes to Egyptian music," he says.

Bomba Estereo

29 July, Village Underground, 54 Holywell Lane, EC2A 3PQ

Part-Latin dancehall, part-electro, Bomba Estereo return to the UK this July to play Shoreditch's Village Underground. The group hailing from Colombia found success for their exuberant pan-tropical compositions and traditional South American folk pounded into dance music beats. While their name, 'Stereo Bomb' in English, fits in with the high-energy live performances and at times bonkers music, their firm grasp of melody usually keeps them away from riotous cacophony. Console geeks may have heard reggaeton hit 'Fuego' used in a FIFA football game but the band's last album also has a few other gems: 'Cosita Rica' takes influence from psychedelia and 'Juana' screams beach house hit. Plus expect a presentation of new tracks off their EP – but the jury is still out on their Technotronic 'Pump up the Jam' cover. Led by the voice of Li Saumet, the Bogota export hailed by MTV should provide another top quality show in line with their Lovebox concert last year and festivals across the US.

Making a splash

Cardinal Pole students battle the rapids at the Lee Valley White Water Centre, which is set to play host to Olympic events next summer

THRILLING for some, terrifying for others, Olympic and Paralympic venue Lee Valley White Water Centre has seen local young people tackle its fast flowing currents ahead of next year's event.

Testing the waters on 29 June, Cardinal Pole students (above) rafted down the same white water the world's best canoeists will face at the Games. Monique Pontifex, PE Teacher at Cardinal Pole, said: "Today has been an unforgettable experience for all the pupils involved. We can't thank Lee Valley White Water Centre enough for making this all possible and ensuring the day has been so memorable for our students. I am sure they will be talking about this for a long time."

Lee Valley White Water Centre, near Waltham Cross, will host five days of intense canoe slalom competition during the Games in front of 60,000 spectators.

Hackney school gets a respray

A 16-METRE long mural celebrating diversity in Hackney has been painted at Downsview special school.

Sixth formers from Clapton Girls' Technology College put the finishing touches to their 'We are Hackney' mural, concluding a nine-month business project to promote the borough.

The students are part of the charity Envision's schools programme which supports young people to design and deliver their own social action projects over the course of a year. Calling themselves Tick

4 Change, the team won £500 funding and raised a further £500 to see their project come to fruition. They then recruited artists from Soulful Gallery, which specializes in graffiti art, who helped them design and install the mural at the Hackney Downs school. It features images of local landmarks including parks and the Rio Cinema in Dalston.

Rashida Khanom, 16, said: "We wanted our project to do something for the community and give something back. We wanted to show that young people care. It's been an amazing experience. Looking back to where we started nine months ago sitting round a table talking about ideas and now seeing the mural up and all the bright colours.

"I feel like we've really achieved something."

The team were mentored on a weekly basis for 10 months by Envision staff as part of the programme.

Show-stopping showcase

HACKNEY Community College (HCC) presented its latest crop of student work at its end of year celebratory show, HCC Summerfest.

Over 700 people attended the on-site fair of art, music, fashion, sport, technology workshops and award ceremonies on 6 July.

Among the activities on offer, visitors could try out new skills including preparing canapés, building brick walls and breaking down car engines; the college's championship winning basketball team (left) presented an exhibition match; while prizes were given to high achieving students and staff; and a fashion show (below) featured the work of students, some of whom have been offered places at top institutions including the London College of Fashion. There was also the chance to find out about local services and organisations and learn about London 2012 jobs from Games organisers.

During the evening, HCC alumni – including award-winning vibraphonist Orphy Robinson and saxophonist Ray Carless – gave performances.

Principal Ian Ashman said: "It was a thoroughly enjoyable day. I'd like to thank everyone involved in running our biggest and best annual student showcase. The music night was a new addition this year, and one that we'll be repeating – I loved the interaction between old and new students as well as the great choice of acts."

School architect lands prizes

THE architects behind the new Lauriston Primary School scooped three honours at the British Council for School Environments awards.

Designed by Meadowcroft Griffin Architects, the E9 school won the Best of British Primary School Award for excellence in design for teaching and learning; was named joint winner for the Best of British Healthy Schools Award for excellence in the provision of dining and outdoor play facilities; and was commended as the Best of British Green School Award for sustainable school of the year.

An £8.2million project to rebuild Lauriston, jointly funded by Hackney Council and the Government, was completed in 2010. New features include improved ventilation and use of natural light, an all-weather area the size of a sports hall and a façade designed by Turner Prize nominee Liam Gillick. Lauriston was the first primary to be rebuilt in the borough for 30 years.

The website for young Londoners YH World was recently relaunched with a brand new look

Yeah yeah YH World

By Michelle Stannard, 25

ALL of our team at YH World have been tapping away at our desks, making movies and searching for content, in preparation for the launch of our new website.

We have expanded our coverage all over London to bring you opportunities from your local neighbourhoods, all in one place. The new website is easier to navigate, so you will never miss a thing. We have broken everything down into categories so there is no more need for you to be searching for hours. You can now simply just select your interest and see what's going on in the areas you love.

The website even models a new look. Its funky black, makes it much more sleek and cool. Well done to everyone who has worked so hard to make it all happen. Grab your laptop and surf your way to a great summer full of fun on our website.

Dare to be different

By James Bryce, 25

FASHION can be a powerful form of identity. But do people judge us by the way we dress?

As you walk down the streets of London you might be taken aback by the way some people dress these days. It is human nature for us to judge each other on the way we dress. Everyone has a different reason for the way they choose their 'get-up', it might be for personal comfort or it might be to fit in with our mates.

Whatever the reason, it is to do with our individuality. Some of the YH World team took to the streets to find out if we judge each other on the way we dress.

Michelle, Gabriel and Akeine learnt that everybody they asked agreed that you judge and get judged on your clothes when you walk down the streets of London. It's a way to express yourself and a way to show off your original or eccentric persona. The number of styles in this day and age is unknown and you won't be able to put a name on half of them.

This is a question we all should consider. We are all different – if we weren't the world would be pretty boring. Do you dare to be different?

NEWS IN BRIEF

It's a knock-out success

FORMER world champion boxer Richie Woodhall (below) has hosted a coaching clinic in Hackney.

The retired super-middleweight also spoke to young people at the Lion Club in Pitfield Street, N1, about his experiences, and the challenges he has faced. He said: "The message of my presentation is that you have to show dedication, determination, perseverance and self-belief. The theme of the talk was boxing but the principles can be applied to any area of life or work. The group were very engaged and I look forward to hearing about their progress in the future."

The event was organised through The Social Change Network and Fight4Change, a charity set up by Richie. Fight4Change uses boxing and fitness activities to engage young people and further develop them around the education, employment and training agenda. The Social Change Network is a London-wide initiative that uses sport to encourage social change. Its work in Hackney will initially focus on the Queensbridge area.

Growing in confidence

The finished garden is a place to work and to relax

St Mary's Secret Garden has set up a £20,000 project for people living with mental health problems.

The community garden in Hoxton now includes a well-being space with a planted gravel garden, turf mounds and decking that doubles as a stage.

In addition, revamped flowerbeds and a solar powered water feature are also planned.

Funds were secured through the Ecominds project – a £7.5million funding initiative from charity Mind and the Big Lottery Fund to help people who have experienced mental illness get involved in green activities. According to Mind, supervised programmes of exercise can be as effective as anti-depressants in treating mild to moderate depression, while improving confidence, self-esteem and physical health.

St Mary's staff member, Catherine Birkett, said: "Anyone who has, or is, living with mental distress is welcome to join in, even if they can only come for one session. The idea is that after funding runs out, people will have the confidence to come back and maintain the garden with minimal support, and use it to meet up with friends they have met through the project."

The group meets twice a week, on Monday afternoons and Thursday mornings.

Pitch in at St Joseph's Hospice

A CARDINAL Pole student who volunteers at St Joseph's Hospice is appealing to others to pitch in at the centre.

Oyinkan Alli-Balogun is helping to find 18 to 50-year-olds to help promote the hospice's services in the borough, and provide patient support.

So far, the Lower Clapton resident has spent three months befriending patients at St Joseph's, as well as volunteering in the administration department.

Oyinkan with a St Joseph's resident

The 18-year-old said: "It has completely changed my perspective on life, talking to people who have lived long, full lives. When I go home I feel like I have really achieved something, even if it has just been sitting silently providing someone with some company."

Raksha Dattani, head of volunteering, added: "Volunteers provide a crucial link between the hospice and the community. They bring knowledge, skills and passion to their role."

St Joseph's will host an open event that includes lunch for prospective volunteers on 27 July, 11am-1.30pm. Another is set to take place on 7 September, 6-8.30pm.

News in brief

Your views on care charges

RESIDENTS who receive community care services from the Council are being asked for their views on plans to change how much they pay towards their care.

The Fairer Charging Policy consultation is aimed at people who use services, including people who receive help at home with preparing food or with washing; people who attend day care centres; and those in receipt of personal budgets. Carers, service providers, Council staff, partners and residents are also being consulted.

The policy follows national guidance on how local authorities should charge for non-residential care services and how that is calculated by taking into consideration service users' disposable income and benefits.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "The Council currently has one of the lowest charging policies in London for its community care services, but we have not reviewed our charging policy since 2002. Our main aim is to protect those who are unable to pay for their care and ensure that those who can contribute towards the cost of their care do so."

The consultation runs until 10 October. Service users should receive information packs directly. Information is available in a variety of formats including versions in easy read, Braille and large print. For more details call: 020 8356 6244. To take part in the consultation online, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/fairer-charging; or e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk.

The audience at a Hackney Stop Falls Network event

Take steps to avoid falls

OLDER residents heard about preventative measures to help avoid falls and improve their quality of life at Hackney Stop Falls Network's latest event on 29 June.

The aim was to raise awareness of the links between eye-sight and falls by offering workshops on sensory awareness and how to create a safer home environment. Anstey Bligh, network co-ordinator, pointed to Age UK research suggesting that, although many factors contribute to falls, vision is among the most important. She said: "Not only does reduced vision cause obvious difficulties in spotting hazards or uneven ground, it can affect balance, co-ordination and mobility, which can increase the risk of falling and accelerate a reduction in muscle strength."

Hackney Stop Falls Network connects residents to local services that can help them reduce the chances of having a bad fall. The event formed part of National Falls Awareness Week, from 20 to 24 June.

HACKNEY STATION, AND WATERCRESS PLANTATION.

Death beds

Clockwise from above: Watercolour of the watercress beds in Morning Lane by G W Toussaint, 1863; OS map from 1890s showing how the beds had been built upon; OS map from 1870 showing the beds still in situ; newspaper clipping about a drowning in 1759; an Illustrated London News picture of Hackney Station (now Hackney Central) and the watercress beds, 1851

an hour after. April 3. 1759
Monday was found drowned in a little pond near Haggerston, between Hackney and Newington road, a boy about three years old. His mother, who was within a field or two gathering water-cress, was almost distracted when she came back and found the child dead.

If you want to buy watercress in Morning Lane these days, you might well end up in the local Tesco supermarket.

But over a century ago, you would have been able to pick your own on the same site. The area's fertile soils made it an ideal place for market gardeners to supply the City with fresh fruit and vegetables, and this combined with a plentiful supply of water also made it a good location for watercress beds.

John Roque's 1745 map of Hackney shows how rural the area was at that time, with Hackney Brook flowing freely above ground amongst orchards and pastures. There were watercress beds at Pond Lane (now Millfields Road), but the most extensive lay between the north side of Morning Lane and Hackney Brook.

Watercress production is thought to have taken place in the area since medieval times, but in the 19th century things began to change. The coming of the railways in the 1840s and the culverting of the flood-prone Hackney Brook were setbacks to production, but the industry still continued.

In his 1874 book 'The Wilds of London', James Greenwood includes a description of a Hackney watercress seller he met one cold November morning. 'That bent-backed old fellow whom we now see looming in the evening twilight (and sober and punctual man that he is, he inevitably is seen looming at this time), is not a picturesque object, and his shrill harsh voice as he shrieks "Wa-ter kree-eses" is decidedly owlsh ... He is 76 next birthday, and has been a soldier.'

When Greenwood asked why the old man didn't buy his cress at the market, he was told that it was cheaper to get it fresh, making as much as three or fourpence difference to a day's takings. Over the next 20 years however, the Morning Lane beds were decimated. It was now more profitable to build on land than to farm it, and by the 1890s many beds were lost under new houses in Chalgrove Road.

The death-knell for what remained of the Hackney watercress beds came in 1903, when there were two major outbreaks of typhoid. Of 110 cases, 35 resulted in death. The report of the Borough's Medical Officer for Health, J. King Warry, on the progress of the epidemic and his work to identify the source makes fascinating reading.

Discounting milk, ice cream, fried fish, shellfish, and defects in drainage as possible culprits, Warry pinpointed a high incidence of watercress eaters among the victims. He traced the cress as having come from beds on the border of Hackney and West Ham which were irrigated by the River Lea, 'so that practically the West Ham beds are fed by almost undiluted sewage'.

The local watercress industry never recovered, and the remaining beds were eventually turned into building plots.

Chalgrove Road was badly bombed during the Second World War and housing demolished in the 1980s. A 1997 archaeological evaluation prior to the site being redeveloped into a supermarket located the last traces of the beds and the marshy ground in which watercress once grew so well.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note that some councillors do not hold surgeries in August. To check surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

Recipes straight from the ovens at Waterhouse

www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Waterhouse – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. This week, Chef Lloyd Hayes serves up a perfect dessert for a summer evening (below). Also this month, the restaurant will be one of the venues taking part in the annual Shoreditch Festival from 18-22 July with highlights including a floating cinema. The customised narrowboat will be at the canal-side restaurant for five days, offering a varied and vibrant programme of free, on-board screenings, quirky canal tours, talks and workshops. For info and listings, visit: www.shoreditchfestival.org.uk

Tiramisu

Serves 6-8

Preparation time 15
15 mins

Chilling time 4
4 hours

Ingredients

- 500g savoiardi biscuits – sometimes known as 'ladyfingers'
- 800g mascarpone cheese
- 500ml strong warm coffee
- 250g caster sugar
- 8 eggs
- 1 orange and 1 lemon for zesting
- Cocoa powder for dusting
- 100ml kahlua (optional)

Method

- Separate eggs, then beat yolks with sugar until pale and fluffy and fold in the mascarpone cheese
- Whisk egg whites to soft peaks and fold into mascarpone mix with the zest of orange and lemons
- To assemble get a deep serving dish. Mix coffee with kahlua if using. Dip the ladyfingers in the mixture one at a time and place next to each other in the dish to create a single layer
- Spread some of the mascarpone mix all over the ladyfingers
- Repeat the layering until all used up, finishing with mascarpone mix
- Dust with cocoa powder and chill for 4 hours

Waterhouse is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. Owned by Shoreditch Trust, its profits go back into a regeneration programme for the local area. Waterhouse in Orsman Road, N1, is open Monday, 12-5pm; Tuesday to Friday, 12noon-4pm, and 6-10pm; Saturday, 12noon-10pm; Sunday, 12noon-4pm. For more info, visit: www.waterhouserestaurant.co.uk For bookings call: 020 7033 0123; or e-mail: eat@waterhouserestaurant.co.uk

£1m for Hackney Wick

THE Hackney Wick Festival organising committee is carrying out a consultation with the residents of Wick ward, on behalf of the Big Lottery Fund.

The aim is to establish people's views on the best way to make use of a £1million Lottery award for the area, due in 2012. In the next few months, there will be opportunities to get involved and tell festival organisers your views, as well as share skills and experiences that could benefit the project.

Looking towards Hackney Wick from Leabank Square, with the Olympic park on the left

To get involved e-mail: consultation@hackneywickfestival.org.uk; or visit: www.hackneywickfestival.org.uk

Alternatively, write comments on a postcard and drop it into one of the consultation post boxes located in shops and cafés around the Wick.

LICENSING

Notice is given that KANAE NASH has applied to the London Borough of Hackney for a tattooing/special treatment licence for the premises 25 PITFIELD STREET N1 6HB.

Anyone wishing to oppose the application must give notice, in writing, to the Licensing Service Manager, London Borough of Hackney, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY, WITHIN THREE WEEKS FROM THE DATE OF PUBLICATION OF THIS NOTICE, specifying the grounds for opposition. Persons objecting to the grant of a licence must be prepared to attend a hearing before a Committee of the Council.

Notice is given that PETER FISK applied to HACKNEY COUNCIL to vary the premises licence at: STOKE NEWINGTON WEST RESERVOIR CENTRE, GREEN LANES, N4 2NA. In order to make the following variation to the licence: On 4th September 2011 between 10.00 – 18.00 Stoke Newington West Reservoir Centre is hosting a Charity mass participation open water event in aid of WWF-UK called the Blue Mile.

The core elements of the event are mass participation one mile open water swim, Kayak stand up paddle board. Running along side the event will be events village that will include live and recorded music along with PA information announcements and interactive exhibits all themed around the marine environment.

Short Information films on the work carried out by WWF will be shown throughout the day. The licence register listing details of the variation is held at the Licensing Service, Hackney Service Centre, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY (Tel No. 020 8356 4970). Details are also available on-line at www.hackney.gov.uk/licensing.

Any representations against this application must be made in writing and received by the Licensing Service at the above address, by no later than the 9TH AUGUST 2011

Residents and businesses in the vicinity of the premises, or their representatives, may make representations on licensing objectives grounds only, i.e. the prevention of crime and disorder, the prevention of public nuisance, public safety and the protection of children from harm. Copies of all representations will be sent to the applicant. It is an offence, liable on conviction to a fine up to £5000 for an applicant to knowingly or recklessly make a false statement in connection with the application.
